Water hyacinths and alligator weeds, beware: Big Brother is watching you.

The county received an inquiry this week from the federal government, asking whether Milam County would be willing to put up 30 per cent of a fund to complete 70 per cent in federal moneys for the control and eradication of water hyacinths and alligator weeds in the county.

County officials were not sure if the waters of Milam County (lakes, tanks and rivers) were clogged with the growth of the two plants.

Nevertheless, a department of the U. S. Government has moneys available for the problem if it exists.

I happened to grow up in a county that had many lakes, some of which suffered (?) from the growth of water hyacinths (actually water lilies) along the shores. Whenever their abundance became a problem somebody who lived along that side of the lake or the owner of the lake cleared them out.

Somehow, the problem failed to need the attention of federal government or investment of any federal funds.

It's apparent that some areas of water in this nation suffer from an overgrowth of the water hyacinth and alligator weed. So now we have a federal fund.

It smacks of George Orwell's chilling novel "1984", which tells of a master control over every facet of life on earth .. people, their properties, their production, their lives. Mr. Orwell overlooked water lilies.

The inquiry came from the Corps of Engineers, Department of Army. This group does commendable work controlling water structures along rivers and streams. Yet we wonder if federal money, more than matching county moneys, should fight water lilies.

What difference does it make? Well, if the federal government is entering the field of water lily control, one can wonder how completely our own tax moneys have enveloped us in Big Brother interests.

I am quite naive about the national problem of water hyacinth and alligator weed control. But if I had a pond full of water lilies (and I don't), I might keep 'em. They are really quite pretty. If they were a nuisance, I wouldn't ask the county, the state, the U.S. government or Nikita Khrushchev for money to clear 'em.

Somehow, those water lilies would be controlled. Big Brother would have to take his long green 70 per cent another place, even though .000000000000001 per cent of it is mine.

Two Injured In 2-Car Collision

Two persons suffered injuries Wednesday morning in a two-car collision at the east city limits on US 77.

Police Chief Chester Simons said that cars driven by Sheriff Luther B. Person, Lampasas County sheriff, and Preston Amos Tyler, 72, Rt. 3, Cameron, collided in a major crash here Wednesday.

Mrs. Annie Tyler, 63, riding with her husband, was taken to Newton Hospital where she was treated for facial cuts and a broken hip, Simons said.

Simons said that Tyler collided with Person while turning off US 77 into a private drive. Tyler was going west while Person was heading east.

The Cameron police officer said that investigation still was pending as to cause of the collision. No tickets had been issued.

Simons rated Tyler's 1949 Ford a total loss while the sheriff's vehicle was damaged to an estimated loss of about $550.

Fauser told Chamber committeemen that he would talk with proprietors about what they wanted in new fronts, sketch out ideas and present them for consideration.

Cameron's first step on a seven-point street program was measured off Tuesday night when the City Council approved bids for N. Jackson, 10th and 18th Sts. paving.

Bids totaling about $19,000 for the three-point project went to Slough Construction Co., Temple.

The Council approved the single bid which includes about $10,755 for paving only on 12 blocks of North Jackson from Sixth to 18th St. and two blocks on East 18th St. Included in the 10th St. bid was $2,556.16 for curb and gutter to be installed by Walter Wallace, Cameron cement contractor.

Four weeks ago the Council turned down a $11,000 bid for the 10th St. project for a new bid call.

Summer Baseball League Program Outlined Here

Eldon Batte, president of the Summer Baseball Program called a meeting last Friday night where plans were made for the coming season.

Managers were named to all the teams and financing was discussed. The school has dropped out of the program and will furnish only the field to play on and some equipment left over from last year. Officials were in doubt about the leagues being able to raise enough money to insure participating boys.

All the financing will be done by the organization. Season tickets will be sold at a dollar a piece to raise money.

The schedule was arranged so the Babe Ruth League will play a game on Mondays and Thursdays. The Little League plays a doubleheader on Tuesdays and Fridays.

The Babe Ruth League will consist of three teams as last year: the IOOF Colts, Cats, and Owls.

Batte said that both Leagues will go by strict Little and Babe Ruth League rules this year. Batte also said that an attempt will be made to get better seating facilities.

Two new attractions will be added to the program. A loud speaker will be used in broadcasting the games at the field and Cameron Coca Cola Bottling Co. will set up a refreshment stand to be operated by the coaches.

The Little League will consist of five teams.

Carriers To Drop Livestock Cards On Cameron Routes

Postmaster John R. Hays announced today that rural mail carriers will begin distributing June 1, 1959 Livestock Survery Cars to patrons on their routes today.

This mid-year livestock survey is the first of three which your Post Office and U. S. Agriculture Departments cooperatively make each year.

The June 1 survey provides basic information to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in Austin for estimating the 1959 calf crop; what the spring pig crop actually numbered and a preview of farrowing intentions for the fall season.

Also, poultrymen will get information on number of chickens raised during the spring. Those chickens will be the coming fall and winter's laying flock.

To be sure our community is well represented in this survey, Postmaster Hays urges each patron receiving a card to fill it out and return to his mail box.

Rural mail carriers working on this project are Chas. Nabours, Route 1, Alvin Mullinax, Route 2, Marvin Nance, Route 3, and Narvie Caperton, Route 4.

Auto Liability Insurance is written by George Childress with easy, low, monthly premium payments as low as $2.17 a month. —Adv.

Poultry Problems?

With summer just around the corner, poultry men are reminded that management practices will require some changing to cope with the heat. Ventilation will be needed and plans should be made now to take care of cooling the poultry houses during the hottest days of summer. Hens, like other farm livestock, must have a plentiful supply of cool-clean water available at all times.

Secretary of State Zollie Steakley has announced that he will reappoint persons now holding notary public commissions but that such persons must re-qualify by the filing of a new oath and bond with the County Clerk of his residence between June 1, 1959 and June 10, 1959.

Steakley emphasized that notaries public should not send requests for reappointment or for commissions directly to the Secretary of State. The law specifically required the County Clerks to approve notary bonds.

Any person not now a notary public who desires appointment should apply to his County Clerk between April 1, 1959 and May 20, 1959. Application during this period will assure prompt attention before the rush procedure of reappointing present notaries.

Secretary of State Steakley further pointed out that each person applying for a commission as a notary public must be at least 21 years of age and a resident of the county for which he is appointed. The exact name and permanent address of the applicant must be furnished the County Clerk.

A Graduate Salute...

A week of decision and achievement has arrived for 73 seniors at Yoe High School and graduates from high schools throughout Milam County.

We cannot pay tribute enough to the youth of our city and county. Without doubt, their grasp of adult responsibility determines the future of Cameron and Milam County.

Cameron seniors are graduating from a steadily improving school system. Graduation classes to come will be the better for this city's drive for better schools throughout Yoe Campus.

Pride and enthusiasm for school achievements continue throughout the years for each new class. And that prideful feeling remains with those long since graduated.

For the graduates of '59 there are many honors... and many problems . . . ahead. Some will enter college next fall, some go into the armed forces and others immediately to their careers.

The Herald hopes these graduates will maintain confidence in Cameron and their county by contributing their youth and vigor to the growth of this area. We hope they may find careers in Cameron and nearby communities.

For the faculties, friends and parents, those achievements of high school have brought profound belief in their youth. It is but right that we herald their accomplishments.

Through the co-operation of Cameron business concerns, we present Cameron's salute to 73 Yoe High School graduates and all the graduates of Milam County Schools. Pictures and stories of Cameron and North Milam County's seniors appear in the second section of this newspaper.

Comes To Defense Of Senators With Those Doors That Won't Close

Dear editar:

A lot of people have been having a lot of fun laughing about the plight of the U. S. Senators in their new office building, on account of when the building was finished and they decided they wanted rugs on the floors over the rubber tilr, they found they'd have to saw half an inch off the bottom of 600 doors befor e they'd open and close.

Now everybody is having a field day over this, but I don't see why, and would like to come to the defense of the United States Senate. There's nothing wrong with sawing off the bottom of a door to make it close, I've been doing it for years.

If the Senators will come to my Johnson grass farm out here, I can show them a door that's not only had half an inch cut off the bottom, but two inches off the top and an inch off the side, and if the house settles in a different direction, I may have to saw some more off in some other place.

What a lot of people don't understand about me and the U.S. Senate is that we've learned that you have to adapt yourself to life as you find it. I know some people would argue that instead of sawing off a door to make it fit after the house settles, it would be better to jack the house up and restore it to the same level it was when the door was first swung, but that's the trouble with the world, it's always trying to retain the status quo when all us thinkers know life consists of constant change. Me and the Senate know that when the foundation shifts, shift with it. You ain't going to catch me and the U. S. Senate crawling under the house to jack it up as long as we've got a saw handy.

I don't suppose the Senate has any trouble with gates too, but out here, while I don't have 600 sagging gates, the one's I've got are just as hard to close as the 600 doors in the new Senate office building, but the differnce is, I can't vote an appropriation to fix mine. Which reminds me, if Congress can vote funds to help eities improve unsightly slums and Senators to get their doors to swing properly and farmers to improve their land, why can't the Department of Agriculture set up a sagging Gate Fund? It's something to think about, although it's not an emergency. I've got gates that have sagged through two world wars and probably will sag through the next.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Legislators Plan 'Fiscal' Training

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN—Between now and the middle of June the Legislature has only one goal to shoot at —getting the state "fiscally fit."

Gov. Price Daniel limited topics for the 30-day special session to (1) paying off the $65,000,000 deficit from the 1958-59 biennium, (2) passing an appropriation bill for 1960-61 and (3) passing a tax program to cover appropriations.

When these things are taken care of, the governor indicated he might submit such items as the Hale-Aikin school program and medical payments for the aged. He favors both these programs, said Governor Daniel, but believes in taking "first things first."

To cover these "first" needs, the governor is pushing a tax program very similar to what he proposed last Janurary. This includes the "bookkeeping bill" (to cut down the deficit by crediting more money to this years), a 3 per cent severance tax on natural gas, a higher corporation franchise tax and the abandoned property bill, under which the state would take over unclaimed bank accounts and property.

He is willing to revise the abandoned property bill to meet some of the objections that caused it to be defeated during the last session.

Absolute deadline for getting the money problems solved is September 1, when the state begins a new fiscal year. Unless new appropriations are provided by then, the government, including schools, hospitals, etc., will grind to a halt.

Hope Springs Eternal

Legislators are again asking the people for a pay raise — this time a more modest amount.

A proposed constitutional amendment, approved on the last day of the regular session, would give lawmakers an annual salary of $4,800. In addition, they would get $12 a day expense money for a 120-day session every other year.

Last November a proposal for annual salaries of $7,500 and annual sessions was decisively swatted down at the polls.

At present, both senators and representatives get $25 a day for a 120-day session plus $25 a day for each called session. It's a minimum total of $3,000 for two years when there are no special sessions. Under the new proposal, the minimum for two years would be $11,040. People will vote on this plan at the general election in November, 1960.

No Sweat Elections

Governor Daniel signed into law a measure moving primary elections up to the first Saturday in May and the first Saturday in June. Under the old law they were the fourth Saturdays in July and August.

State conventions will be the second Tuesday after the runoff primary — or about the middle of June. This is the convention to name delegates to the national presidential nominating convention.

Earlier elections had the strong backing of U. S. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's friends and supporters. As a possible presidential nominee, he would be in a stronger position if his race for a new senatorial term were behind him at national convention time.

Govenor Daniel took exception to and got the Legislature to change certain provisions of the bill before he signed it. He objected to having Democratic executive committee members elected by district caucuses rather than the whole convention. This provision was removed and the law remains as it was.

He also didn't like the Leislature's proposal to have state conventions before the second primary, so the date was changed to 10 days after the second primary.

New Laws

These changes in Texas' way of doing things result from bills passed in the final days of the regular session:

These changes in Texas' way of doing things result from bills passed in the final days of the regular session:

DRIVING AN AUTO without the owner's permission becomes a felony offense. Under old law, to get a prison sentence, state presecutors had to prove the person who took another's car intended to keep it. Maximum punishment under new law is three years in prison.

BOAT OWNERS will have to register their craft and pay a license fee after April, 1960. Bill also requires warning lights and other safety devices on boats and prohibits reckless boating and water skiing.

NON-ENGLISH SPEAKING children can receive three months preschool instruction in basic English at the expense of the public school system.

State inspection of livestock at auctions was provided. An amendmendment to assess livestock owners for cost of the program, estimated at nearly a half-million a year, failed.

Rural Nonfarmer Gains In Number

COLLEGE STATION—The old distinctions between farm and city are rapidly disappearing, said Reagan Brown, extension rural sociologist.

Rural nonfarm people now outnumber farm people by a ratio of 5 to 3 and it appears certain that more nonfarm people will live in rural areas.

More than a third of farm operators work off their farms 100 days or more per year. In 1957, about 40 per cent of net income of farm families was from nonfarm sources, he said.

Family operated farms will increase in size since technological improvements are by no means complete. Agriculture, said Brown, appears to be only in the middle of revolutionary changes both in size and capital structure.

Larger farms mean larger investments, not only for land and buildings but for all the machinery and non-agricultural supplies needed in modern farm production. Based on present rends, investment per commercial farm by 1975 may amount to over $80,000 in 1958 dollars compared to a little less than $40,000 now, he said.

Various new financial devices may be worked out to meet the need, some based upon methods now common in industry. One development already underway is the use of land-purchase contracts under which the title of the land remains with the seller until all or a percentage of payments have been made.

Commercial family farms will probably continue to be the dominant form of organization in American agriculture. Labor reqnirements have not increased with the size of farms exlept in some limited areas. For the bulk of farmers, efficient operation seems likely to been needed in the past, he added.

Blackland Day Set Friday

By J. D. Moore

The Annual Blackland Field Day at the Blackland Experiment Station has been set for 9:30 a.m. Friday. The purpose of this event is to show some of the latest research developments in crop production and soil-water conservation.

This event is being sponsored by the Agriculture Committee, Temple Chamber of Commerce, Blackland Station, Extension Service, and the Central Texas Soil Conservation District.

Highlights of the event include: Sorghum and corn fertility studies; experiments on controlling cotton root rot with plastic mulches; parallel terraces; row spacing of grain sorghum; evaporation studies in grain sorghum using plastic mulches; pasture management studies including livestock; small grain varieties and fertility; cotton varieties and rotation experiments; and grain sorghum varieties, date of planting, and rate of planting plots.

This short fast moving program will appeal to grain, cotton, and beef cattle farmers. The Blackland Expermient Station has played an important role in many of the latest practices which have been released recently to farmers. Participation in this field day will give farmers a prospective of some of the newer farming and conservation practices which are developing. A cordial invitation is extended to all farmers in the Blackland area of Texas.

Milam county farmers and stockmen are urged to attend.

SPRAY PECAN TREES NOW—This tiny green worm will bore into the tiny pecan from now into early June, causing the pecans to drop off the tree. Use any of the following spray materials: Malathion, 2 teaspoons to 1 gallon of water; DDT, 4 tablespoons of 50 per cent wettable powder to 1 gallon of water or parathion at the rate of 2 teaspoons to 1 gallon of water.

Due to the uncertain occurence of this insect, a spray application now and another in another week or 10 days is advised. Usually, one spray application gives good control if the insect is present when application is made. By examining the small pecans clusters is the surest way to determine the presence of the insect. After the damage is done and the small pecans have fallen to the ground, little can be done to correct the situation.

COTTON INSECTS—a number of fields of young cotton were examined this week and a number of overwintered boll weevils were present. No actual damage is done by these overwintered weevils until cotton begins to square but their presence indicates the possibility of trouble ahead.

The overwintered weevils feed on the terminal buds until squares occur on the plants. As the stalk starts forming squares, the weevils punctures the squares and deposit their eggs in the squares to build up heavy infestations of weevils in damaging numbers.

The theory for early season poisoning of cotton is to kill off the over-wintered weevils as well as thrips, fleahopprs and other harmful insects.

POISON TO USE—Farmers are advised to mix DDT with Toxaphene, Heptachlor, Malathion, Dieldrin or other insecticides if difficulty occurs in killing cotton insects due to possible resistance to the insecticide. Some farmers indicate their intentions of using DDT with Malathion or Parathion as one of the early season applications for a knock-out dosage to prevent a damaging build-up of the bollweevil.

Spray Control

Herbicide sprays for brush and weed control should be applied when wind speed is 10 miles per hour or less.

Hillsboro, Tex., Man Reports—

Profitable increases on dryland cotton and sorghum, using ammonia

John Knox, who farms 350 acres near Hillsboro, says: "By using Phillips 66 Ammonia, I've gotten profitable increases on dryland sorghum and cotton. For example, on dryland sorghum I got about a 1500-pound grain increase. Actually the soil planted to sorghum was so thin, if I hadn't used ammonia it wouldn't have paid me to combine the crop. Also we got up to a 3% decrease in moisture on the sorghum, which enabled us to get a better price."

Other successful Texas farmers have discovered that they make more profit per acre, using Phillips 66 Ammonia. They get more cotton that classes higher at the gin . . . yields of sorghum grain or ensilage are increased . . . profits on wheat and small grains are boosted through higher grain yields and improved forage . . . more marketable vegetables are harvested.

Phillips 66 Ammonia can be easily applied by you or your distributor. See us today about Phillips 66 Agricultural Ammonia . . . it gives you more nitrogen per dollar than any other form of fertilizer—a full 82%.

Mr., Miss YHS Busy Year-Round

The composite senior boy and girl in the class of 1959 were busy people during the past four years at Yoe High School.

Such a conclusion is inevitable after reviewing the activities of the 73 graduating seniors.

It seems that Miss and Mr. YHS of 1959 found an abundance of time for all manner of activities that ranged from football to FFA and Home Ec to honor graduate.

Both are apparently versatile people who have joined in the variety of activities made available to all YHS students.

Interested In Sports

Mr. Average Senior probably played at least one sport football, basketball, track, tennis--and joined at least one scholastic club or other extra-curricular activity.

And somehow he found time to try out for the senior class play or play in the YHS band.

Besides all these things, he kept up his grades and is able to plan for college this fall in about 50 percent of cases.

Miss Average Senior was equally swallowed up in the whirl of goings on. She belonged to the Future Homemakers Club or was active in some type of literary work. She took time out to win a post in Latin Club or the Library Club.

There was also that job on the Yoeman Chant or the school yearbook that took a lot of time. But not enough to keep her from listing the name of a college on the "Things to Come" list.

Yoe Boosters

Both rooted for the Yoemen at the games during the past four years. Their spectator interest in YHS sports probably capped earlier years' of enthusiastic support for Cameron squads. The versatile couple seemed to be everywhere at once while at YHS.

But most of all, they didn't forget their work. That's why they are among the 73 graduates who will receive their diplomas tomorrow night.

Joyce Hannon Wins Band Scholarship For Baylor Camp

Miss Joyce Hannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Hannon, has been granted a scholarship to the second annual Baylor University summer music camp, to be held on June 6-14.

This camp is held on the campus at Waco, and is conducted in the fields of chorus and orchestra. The orchestra will be conducted by Dean Daniel Sternberg, chairman of the School of Music, Baylor.

In addition to twice-daily rehearsals with the orchestra, she will also attend classes in chorus, harmony, and in other fields of music theory. Miss Hannon will take part in many recreational activities to be offered by the camp.

She is a junior in Yoe High School, is now tympanist with the high school band, playing snare drum and bass drum, also cymbals in the number of years in the band.

Three Ada Henderson Graduates Honored At Western Style Party

Western clothes were worn by the 17 guests including out of town friends, Leila Monroe from LaMarque, H. L. Farrell and Ronnie Tyler of Rogers. Bales of hay, saddles and bridles were placed around the patio to create a Western atmosphere.

Supper was served buffet style on the patio from a table covered with a red cloth and centered with a cactus and rock arrangement in a wooden bowl. Drinks were served from a "water hole" and guests ate at card tables covered with red and white checked table cloths.

Norman Bales of Rosebud entertained with cowboy songs accompanying himself on the guitar. Other entertainment included group singing and games.

Food for the party was furnished by the women of the Church of Christ.

Most Fish Have Some Nickname

By Vern Sanford

Let's say your name is John Smith.

Some people call you John, and some call you Smith, and some call you by your various nicknames, such as Red, or Butch, or Mud-Face.

The same is true of fish — only more so.

Take a yellow cat. Sometimes he is known as an Opelousas, a flathead, a mud-cat, or a Goujon. Actually, he is not a yellow cat by scientific classification. He is a Pilodictis Olivaris.

This thing about names gets crazier all along. For example, the bass.

The largemouth, or black bass, is our favorite fish in Texas. But he's not really a bass. He's a member of the sunfish family. So are the bluegill (bream), rock bass and crappie.

The white bass is a true bass, and the only one we have in Texas' fresh water.

When I was a boy, we went fishing for perch. But we never caught perch. We caught a lot of bream (bluegills), and we called them perch. They have many, many other popular names.

When a fellow tells me that he caught some white perch, I really don't know whether he means crappie or white bass.But in either event, I know he is employing a misnomer. Actually, the white perch is a sea bass found along the Atlantic coast.

Technically, there is no such things as a perch in Texas . . . white or any color.

Okay, so a friend of mine goes fishing. Imagine a conversation between him and me when I see him next.

"Hello, Joe, how's fishing?"

"Pretty good, I guess. Caught three micropterous salmoides, half dozen marone (or roccus) chrysops, and a six-pound ictalurus lacustris punctatus."

Well, that's really great. Now all I have to do is look all this stuff up somewhere and find out that he captured three black bass-large mouth), six white bass (sand bass, sandies, barfish, striped bass), and a channel cat, (spotted cat, blue channel, willow cat fiddler cat).

Let's say the poor guy caught some crappie. In that case, being technical, he'd call the white crappie a pomoxis annularis (White perch, speckled perch), and the black crappie a pomoxis nigromaculatus (white perch, calico bas strawberry bass).

Suppose he had latched onto a gaspergou. Well—the gaspergou is not really a gaspergou at all. He is a fresh water drum, sometimes called a rockfish or river perch (aplodinatus grunniens), a kinsman of the saltwater drum.

Speaking of salt water — the flounder, captured along the Gulf Coast, also is called a sole, a summer flounder and a flatfish. No use to go into all those Latin names.

The speckled trout is properly a spotted weakfish, also known as trout, yellowmouth, sow trout and speck.

The redfish, properly the channel bass, is a red drum, a rat red, or a bull red. The black drum is a drummer, butterfly drum, or hogfish. The pike, properly robalo is a snook or striped trout.

You probably have heard many of these fish by other names, in addition to those I have mentioned. The crappie alone has about 60 different appellations over the country, and some of the names for crappie, erroneously, are the right names for other fish. So its a wonder any other angler ever knows what another angler is talking about.

There's Latin, as well as English confusion, too. As indicated above, the white bass is sometimes the rocco chrysops and sometimes the marone chrysops. Possibly we can take heart in the fact that the Romans agreed on his last name.

A largemouth bass is a largemouth bass. If you call one a bronzeback, you are using one of his nicknames. The small-mouth bass is something else. So is the spotted and so is the white bass. But those are the accepted names.

resh water catfish are blue catfish, channel catfish, and flathead catfish, the latter being what you have been calling a yellow catfish.

Crappies are rightly two and two only—black and white. By any other name, they fry delectably, too. But we are trying to get their names straight.

If you know them all apart, you are an aquatic biologist.
